In the Matter of)	CG Docket No. 02-278
Rules and Regulations Implementing)
the Telephone Consumer Protection)
Act of 1991)

OPPOSITION TO PETITION FOR STAY
OF THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE
OF THE UNITED STATES et al

I respectfully submit this reply to the Chamber of Commerce of The United States et al (“Chamber”) Petition for Stay in regard to the Commission’s reversal on the Existing Business Relationship (“EBR”) dealing with facsimile transmissions. [In the Matter of Rules and Regulations Implementing the Telephone Consumer Protection Act of 1991, Report and Order, FCC Rcd., 03-153 (F.C.C. Jul 03, 2003), 68 FR 44144-01.]

In the June 26th adoption of the Commission Report and Order the Commission reversed its earlier opinions that a prior EBR constitutes prior express consent to receive facsimile transmissions. Such a reversal is appropriate given the plain language of the statute, the intent of Congress and the unanimous decisions handed down by the courts that have addressed this issue¹.

Chamber’s petition incorrectly claims that the Commissions reversal of its opinion is a new rule. There is no new rule! There has never been an EBR in the United States Code or Code of Federal Regulations. The Commission erroneously issued an opinion that an EBR equated to prior express consent. The Commission has rightfully corrected itself and reversed its opinion.

Additionally, Chamber’s petition incorrectly claims that a stay is merited under the First Amendment. The First Amendment does not grant the right to anyone to commandeer someone else’s private property for any purpose.

I work for a federal contractor at a federal facility and see many unsolicited facsimile advertisements. This year alone over 400 unsolicited facsimile advertisements were received on the fourteen (14) facsimile machines that I have access to. Included in those facsimiles are advertisements from businesses that have erroneously assumed that an

EBR is permission to transmit unsolicited facsimile advertisements². Apparently this is occurring at federal facilities all over the country. Such facsimiles are not only a violation of the TCPA they are also trespass upon, conversion of and theft of government property.

The engineers I work with provide their facsimile numbers when submitting RFP's (Request for Proposal) on their projects. Permission to transmit unsolicited facsimile advertisements is never given – that is not only company policy it is also federal law that prohibits the use of federal property for advertising purposes.

In that light it is only prudent that everyone obtain permission by signature and telephone number prior to transmitting a facsimile. Asking for permission during an initial contact with someone does not take that much more time or any extra record keeping.

In conclusion, there has never been nor is there now an exemption in the TCPA for an EBR on unsolicited facsimile transmissions. It is not labor intensive or burdensome to obtain the signature authorization and telephone number prior to transmitting an unsolicited facsimile. It is not only the proper thing to do but it will also help those entities engaged in legitimate activities from violating a federal consumer protection law. A stay as requested by Chamber is not in the best interests of the general public and will harm the general public. As such the Commission has made the proper determination in its ruling adopted June 26th, 2003 and I respectfully request that Chamber's request for a stay be denied.

Respectfully submitted,

_____/s/_____

² See attached – the unsolicited facsimile advertisements were transmitted after a purchase. Permission to transmit such unsolicited facsimile advertisements was never granted. The Commission may note that the BTX facsimile fail to provide the required header information and are not addressed to any individual.
